LONDI Kindness Pairs

Play together. Notice kindness. Try one little action.

For children aged 4–11 with a parent, carer or teacher. Younger children may enjoy looking at the pictures while a grown-up reads the words.

How to play

Choose 4, 6 or 8 pairs. Turn over two cards and look for the same picture. When you find a pair, read its little kindness idea together. Keep going at your own pace, or stop whenever you like.

Make it a conversation

- What is happening in the picture?
- How could we find out what someone needs?
- What could we try together today?

There can be more than one kind response. Asking and listening help us understand. Someone can say no to playing, sharing or receiving help. That is OK. Respecting space can be kind too.

At home

Try a short round together. Take turns choosing cards or search as a team. Choose one action to try afterwards, such as listening, taking turns or saying thank you. There is no need to keep score or finish every level.

In a classroom or group

Use classroom mode for larger text and messages that stay until you continue. Work together or invite children to take turns. Let children describe the pictures in their own words; participation can be quiet, spoken or through pointing. Avoid ranking children by memory or kindness.

Away from the screen

Use the printable picture pairs for a tabletop matching game. A grown-up can cut out the cards. Start with four pairs and add more when the group wants a longer game. Use the same conversation questions.

Certificates to collect

Each level has its own A4 certificate-poster: Garden of Kindness (4 pairs), Create & Care (6 pairs) and Kindness Around London (8 pairs). After a round, open My LONDI certificate, then print it or choose “Save as PDF” (A4, landscape). Collect them at your own pace; the game does not record which ones a child has. Names, dates and the kind thing to try are written by hand.

Keeping play simple

No child accounts, name entry, advertising or purchases are part of the game. Sound is optional. The game remembers only classroom mode and the last level chosen, on the device itself. A website host may still process ordinary technical access logs when the online version loads.
